

EDITORIAL*The bell that resonates in liquid times!

Resonate, sound, or sweat... These are words that are confused in our conscious, clear in grammar, and not in practice. Inside us a whirlwind, a tsunami that presents itself out of nothing and devastates everything, the bell of the conscious that sounds and resonates the voice of reason and lucidity, but also demands, attitude, and responsibility, perspectives that we do not always reach with ourselves and with life...

So in this whirlwind of winds we get sweating to get out, throw away unresolved feelings, unfulfilled wills, unspoken things, deferred paths, that come out through the pores, sweat!

For lack of condition, will, or courage, "a bad thing that is good" things of the said human being, who in his pre-conscious finds himself eternal, and when he takes the reins of life, time has passed as the resound of the bell, brief, strong, fast and fleeting.

As the bell resounds the inside, there is a cry that resonates by the right sound or the response of the path of sound that echoes and persists in shouting, and murmuring the noise of change, hope, or even constancy.

A disorganization and organization of life, which at the moment shows itself as excessively sweaty, occurs in the search for the soft wind that refreshes and resounds the inner bell. It brings the state of love as a sign of its own, to lead to love, there is love! Spoken word, spoken, desired and not always practiced...

Unlike passion, in a runaway resound like a gale that passes and takes almost everything, love leaves a trail that resonates like a soft, refreshing inner bell and messenger of the good news.

In this liquidity of the resounding of the internal bell provoke can liquefied the internal sounds and thus propose a meeting of itself, and as a chameleon a collect and an adaptation to the new sounds that echo...

There's a way to find the bell that resonates!
